NEW COURSES IN COMMERCE

Improvements in Commerce Department Make It Possible for Students Who Wish to Specialize to Get Varied and Extensive Course.

Students who attend the Northwest Missouri State Teachers College this summer will have an unusual opportunity for selection of courses in the department of commerce.

Since Mr. Rogers' connection with the commercial department last fall he has added numerous improvements. He now announces that the schedule planned for the summer quarter will meet all demands for instruction in commerce. Students who have had only a small amount of instruction along this line may find the continuation of their course in the classes which are being planned.

Miss James and Miss Briggs will have charge of all courses in stenography. It will be possible to take practically any course desired in this line. Students who have had three courses in typewriting and five hours of shorthand will have the opportunity to take Advanced Typewriting, which consists of study of machines, use of special attachments, spacing, centering, development of speed, letter writing, preparation of statistical reports, graphs, rough drafts, etc.

The advanced course in shorthand gives special attention to the work of the secretary. Original work is demanded in sending of telegrams, writing of letters, framing of advertisements. Dictation from different types of businesses and legal documents is given throughout the course.

Business Letter Writing, which is a newly organized course is taught from the manager's point of view. Collection letters, collection follow up, adjustment, credit, and sales letters, and applications for positions, in fact, every phase of the construction of the effective business letter will be studied.

A Survey Course in Accounting, especially designed for teachers, will be offered by Mr. Rogers. He has made a special survey of several of the best accounting systems and has outlined the course in a manner to give students the opportunity to gain an insight into the methods and systems of the best authors. For example, a study and comparison of the Trial Balance, Balance Sheet, and Profit and Loss Statement in regard to method and presentation in the different texts will be made. Also questions and exercises have been planned which will give opportunity for the application of the fundamental processes in higher accounting. Authors of the texts which will be used are Kester, C. P. A., Director Department of Accounting, Columbia University, New York; Scovill, C. P. A., Head of Department of Accounting, University of Illinois; Finney, C. P. A., Head of Department of Accounting, Northwestern University; McKinsey, C. P. A., Director Department of Accounting, University of Chicago; and Baker, author of Twentieth Century.

Mr. McKinsey is a personal friend of Mr. Rogers. Mr. Rogers says that he is a practical business man as well as a theorist. He is the foremost man in the country on the idea of budgetary control; his system has been adopted by many of the largest manufacturing and mercantile corporations in America. Recently, he has completed the reorganization of the entire accounting system of the Armour Company in Chicago.

The Twentieth Century Texts are used in sixty-eight per cent of the high schools and colleges in the United States and in sixty per cent of the schools of Missouri. Mr. Baker has recently outlined a special teacher's manual containing lesson plans for the entire high school course and has made a special offer to the commerce department whereby a free manual will be given to all members of the accounting class this summer.

Advanced Law will be offered in order to meet the demand of seniors who are majoring in commerce. Those who have not had the first course may take the advanced course, although it is better to have had the first course. The main problems studied are the organization of partnerships and corporations, liability of stock holders, guarantyship, suretyship, bailments, and insurance.

Membership Methods will be scheduled during the first six periods of the day. When asked why so many classes in membership were to be offered, Mr. Rogers said:

Have Exhibition of Public School Art

An exhibit of art work done in the Maryville public schools under the supervision of Miss DeLuce and Miss Hopkins of the State Teachers College this year is being displayed in the east and west corridors on the fourth floor of the college building.

The exhibit is most interesting and well worthy of careful study.

There are examples of posters, illustrating Mother Goose rhymes and stories, free-hand drawings, crayola drawings, drawings of landscapes, designs for booklet covers in stick printing, portfolio covers for history and agriculture, landscape scenes, Indian rug designs, and stencil designs for curtains. The drawings of buds done in the eighth grade are particularly attractive.

The display will be left in the corridor for the benefit of the summer students. Anyone expecting to teach in the elementary school next year should be able to gain some very helpful ideas.

DEAN OF WOMEN ADDRESSES Y. W.

Tells of Place of Foreign Student in Colleges and Universities of the United States.

"The education of foreigners in the colleges of the United States will have a great influence upon future international relations, in that the leaders in the educational world, in almost every country where the educational systems have recently undergone great changes, are graduates of American Colleges." This was the most important message that was given by Dean Edith A. Barnard at the regular meeting of the Y. W. C. A., Tuesday morning in her talk on "Foreign Students in American Colleges."

Dean Barnard began her discussion by saying that there are from 20,000 to 30,000 foreigners enrolled in American Colleges today, and that there are many agencies for helping these students to have friendly relations with the American students and among themselves. She gave an interesting account of the wonderful work that is being done by the "American Committee for Friendly Relations with Students." This Committee has local and traveling secretaries whose business it is to help establish friendly relations among students; publish journals for the students to read; plan receptions; help foreign students to edit small monthly magazines in own language and from these magazines we are able to get the foreigners point of view; plan student conferences helping to overcome race prejudices; aid other students to find out for themselves that these foreigners have hearts and souls and that they are able to teach Americans a great deal; and finally, give these students any financial aid that they are able to give.

Dean Barnard praised John D. Rockefeller, Jr., for his interest in helping financially to carry on the work of establishing friendly relations between foreign students and American students.

Dean Barnard concluded her address by urging American students to extend their sympathy and to have patience and understanding with these students of foreign countries who will be the leader of their own countries in the future.

Following is the complete program given Wednesday morning.

Song "Come Thou Almighty King"—Congregation.

Prayer—Dorothy England.

Devotional exercises—Mildred New. Solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings"—Christine Goff.

Talk, "Foreign Students in American Colleges"—Dean Edith A. Barnard.

At the conclusion of the program plans were made to assist the W. A. A. in serving supper on the college campus after the May-Day program.

A report was made by Alyce Allen on the market that was held last week. The organization cleared $13.75 at the market.

Mrs. L. D. May has accepted a position to teach the four upper grades in Castle School, Andrew County, at a salary of $125 per month. Castle is one of the best schools in Andrew County. It has a Parents Teachers Association.

Mr. Phillips delivered an address at the high school commencement exercises at Winston, Friday evening, May 16.

INCREASES FACULTY FOR SUMMER TERM

Secure Art, Mathematics, Industrial Arts, and Social Science Assistants—To Choose Others Soon.

The increased attendance during the summer necessitates the employment of many additional instructors. Complete announcement of the instructors who will assist this summer cannot be made at this time, but some of them have been chosen.

Miss Helen I. Anderson, head of the Arts Department at Stephens College, Columbia, has been secured as an assistant in the Fine Arts Department of the College for the summer. Miss Anderson was for five years a special art teacher in the school of Joliet, Ill. She has held her present position at Stephens College for three years. She comes to the College highly recommended by Professor Ankenay, of the department of art at Missouri University; by President James M. Wood, of Stephens College; and Dr. J. J. Oppenheimer, Dean of faculty, Stephens College.

Miss Anderson's preparation for her work has been very broad. She is a graduate of the Illinois State University, Normal, Illinois, and has taken special courses in art at the Art Institute, and Applied Art School, Chicago. She also had a year's work in commercial design in the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts. Later, she studied landscape painting and sculpture at the Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

Miss Anderson spent last summer in Europe, studying in the Fontainebleau School of Fine Arts, in France, and in the studio of Jean Despois, in Paris.

Miss Lois Kate Halley, M. A., Chicago University, 1924, will be an assistant for the summer term in the department of social sciences. Miss Halley is now teaching in Woman's College, Columbus, Mississippi.

Mrs. Theodosia Callaway, instructor in Mathematics at Stephens College, Columbia, will return to Maryville for her third summer's work in the mathematics department of the college.

Mrs. Frances W. Bassett, of Columbia, will assist Miss Mary Fisher in the Industrial Arts department during the summer quarter. Mrs. Bassett graduated from Missouri University in 1923. She has been in charge of Art and Handwork in the grades of the Columbia Schools this year.

Seven members of the graduating class of 1925 have majored in public school music. Several of these students have been placed in good positions.

Mr. Prim: "I'm just a passer-by, Miss Marden; here to-day, and gone to-morrow. You really shouldn't tell me."

College Has Bought New Address Machine

A new Elliott Addressing Machine has been purchased by the college to be used primarily for addressing the Green and White Courier each week. Here-to-fore the Courier has been addressed and mailed from the printing office downtown, but beginning with the summer quarter the College paper will be addressed and mailed from the College.

In addition, the machine will be used in sending out office mail, bulletins, and other matters from the College.

Fourteen of the twenty-nine graduates of the Maryville High School who will attend the college here this fall have expressed their desires to study in the Department of Commerce and Business Administration.

L. L. Livengood, B. S. 1920, and Mrs. Livengood, a former student of S. T. C., will leave in about two weeks for Columbia, where they will enter the University of Missouri. They taught in the Elmo High School this winter.

At this meeting the constitution for the society was considered and adopted, subject to the approval of the student welfare committee and the faculty. ## DANCING CLASSES TO GIVE MAY FETE

Old English May Games, Centering Around Robin Hood to Be Part of Program This Afternoon.

One of the most colorful and spectacular pageants in the history of the college will be given this afternoon at 4:15 on the south campus. This May-Day festival takes the form of a story built around the beautiful old legend of "Robin Hood and Maid Marian."

The long and dignified procession starts from the east entrance of the building or "sheriff's castle" and slowly proceeds across the campus.

In stately order, heralds, gay colored flower girls and crown bearers, will precede the fair queen, who will be robed in a dress of green and gold and will be riding a handsome steed. Immediately by the queen's side will be her pages and guards. Her Ladies-in-waiting with pages, nobles, and the Sheriff, dressed in red and riding on horseback come next in order. These characters will be followed by nearly two hundred dancers representing shepherds, milkmaids, fools, witches, chimney sweeps, hobby horses, strolling minstrels, singers, tumblers, and wrestlers. Their costumes will be bright, and true to the old English dress in every detail.

The long procession will wend its way to the south end of the campus, where a throne banked with foliage and spring flowers, will be in readiness for the queen. The queen will then be crowned with a crown of flowers by Maid Marian, gowned in a soft flowing white robe.

As further tribute to the newly crowned queen, her dancers will perform their May-pole dances, winding the main May pole and five smaller ones with green and white colored streamers, as they dance.

From the west, or the forest, will come Robin Hood and his men. They, too, will pay honor to the queen by their dances in front of her throne. After them will come a group of minstrels and singers who will entertain the queen and her dancers and thus bring to a joyous close the May-festival.

The students having main parts in the pageant are Ora Mae Condon, Queen; M. Selemann, sheriff; Major Roy Raynor, Robin Hood; Lucille LaMar, Maid Marian. The music furnished throughout the afternoon will be by the College Orchestra under the direction of Mr. Larson.

All plans and directions have been in the hands of Miss Ruth Bass, whose ability in that line makes the success of this event certain.

The Y. W. C. A. and the W. A. A. girls located in attractive booths on the campus will serve a picnic supper at six o'clock, to the crowd in attendance.

Tennis Matches Are Played This Week

MR. LOOMIS TALKS TO H. S. GRADUATES

Mrs. Ralph Eversole Plays Her Own Composition and Mrs. F. Wolfers Gives Vocal Selections.

Social practice in politics, business, and industry have more influence in forming character than the schools, was the thought conveyed by Mr. Loomis when addressing the high school graduates at the college, Wednesday morning.

"I would be untrue to my state and to my college not to tell you this that you may make your dreams come true," said Mr. Loomis.

"The ideals of society are not the ideals of your school room; absolute honesty is not a practice in business; the world will not obey all laws, but will show you which are to be kept and which violated. Mr. Loomis told the graduates. The school has invited you to art and literature. The world will drench your soul with lust and sensualism. We may indicate the nobility of service but the world will blazon from every skyscraper and every cellar—the horrid motto, 'Put Money in Thy Purse.' The world needs honest, faithful, cultured men in the world's affairs and places of influence. Strong, indeed, is the man who is not influenced by it."

The idea was brought out that the problems of youth today are so closely bound up with our economic civilization that to solve the ills of one is to solve the ills of both. As an illustration of the exaggerated role of youth is called upon to enact in industry and business, Mr. Loomis alluded to the high salaried comic newspaper writer and the types of talent for which exorbitant prices are paid in the motion picture industry. He made an appeal to the graduates for a higher standard of intellectuality and urged that they assume their responsibility to society and give back to society in full measure.

As a solution for the problem, Mr. Loomis said that he had faith in the men in business and in industry and that he believed that they would take time off from the counting house or club house to help us. He believes that the young people today are sincere and earnest. They know that kindness, courtesy, industry, honesty and truth are virtues before they are told. An appeal was then made to the graduates not to sink to the level of the morals and ideals of the world but rather to be lifters.

The following was the complete program:

Piano Solo—Original Composition.

Mrs. Ralph Eversole.

Invocation—Dr. C. C. James.

Vocal Solo, "La Serenata"—Tosci Vocal Solo, Villanella—Del' Aqua.

Mrs. Fred Wolfers.

S. T. C. THIRD IN STATE MEET

First Place Goes to Springfield, and Second to Kirksville—J. Smith of Maryville Sets Record for 2-Mile Run—Other Records Broken.

With 36½ points to their credit, only one point less than Kirksville, winners of second place, the Bearcats won third place in the M. T. A. A. track and field meet held at Kirksville last Saturday.

The Maryville half-mile relay team composed of George Smith, "Dixie" Davenport, Paul Robey, and Frank Crane established a new record for that event, running the four 220 yard laps in 1 minute, 33.6 seconds. In this race Robey lost one of his shoes and was forced to run the last 100 yards of his lap barefooted. The record is 1.3 seconds faster than the one set by Springfield last year.

John Smith set a new record in the two-mile run. "Johnny" ran this distance in 10 minutes, 27.5 seconds.

However, Smith led his nearest opponent, Hembree of Springfield by only a foot. The former record, held by Springfield, was 13 seconds slower than Smith's record.

The Bearcats also took first place in the mile relay. George Smith, Davenport, Wakely, and Crane, who ran this event, stepped off the four quarters in 3 minutes, 28.5 seconds, which is four seconds slower than the record set by the Maryville team last year.

Davenport set a new record for the 880-yard run making it in 2 minutes, 4.2 seconds. He placed in the preliminaries of the 220-yard dash but did not run the finals of this event. He also placed third in the 100-yard dash.

G. Smith and "Dixie" Davenport, with a total of 8½ points tied for high point man of the meet.

"Dixie" won first in the 880-yard run and third in the 100-yard dash and ran in both relays. G. Smith, besides running in both relays, placed first in the 440-yard run and third in the 120-yard high hurdles.

In the pole vault Hollar, of Maryville, and French of Warrensburg tied for first and second and Peoples of Maryville and Perry of Kirksville tied for third.

Peoples and Morris, both of Maryville, tied for third in the high jump. Hollar won second in the discus and Joy placed third in the javelin throw.

Springfield won the meet with a total score of 47 points. Kirksville was second with 37½ points and Maryville third with 36½. Warrensburg and Cape Girardeau won 12 and 11 points respectively.

In spite of a slick track, due to the rains Friday, seven new records were set and the old record for the 220-yard dash was equaled. The events, in which records were broken are: 2-mile run, half-mile relay, 880-yard run, shot put, javelin, discus, and high jump.

This is the last meet for the Bearcats this season.

Following is the summary:

We will never and obey the college laws, and to our best to incite a like respect and reverence in others. We will strive unceasingly to quicken the students' sense of duty. ## THIRD PRIZE ESSAY

What I Would Say If I Were a Judge to Whom an Offender Offered as His Excuse, "I Am Not a Citizen of the Country Whose Law I Have Broken."

In a dimly lighted courtroom was seated an old judge. His coldly penetrating eyes were fixed appraisingly on the prisoner before him. The prisoner—his shifty black eyes and sallow complexion betraying his lowly parentage—writhed under the relentless scrutiny of the judge. "You said," began the judge slowly, "that you should not be punished because you are not a citizen of this country whose law you have broken."

Under the spell of the judge's soothing and fascinating voice the prisoner relaxed but listened intently to the gray haired man before him. "I am thinking of a city, crowded with many hundreds of houses, teeming with people. The houses are like islands, reflecting the love or hatred that exists in them. There are all types of houses—large and small, beautiful and ugly, new and old, houses under construction and houses in ruins. Happiness and tranquility pervade the most beautiful homes—homes made beautiful by loyal, ambitious people. There leaders are men of wisdom and righteousness, and their children have happy, eager faces. In some of the wretched hovels of the city, the inhabitants dwell in squalor and filth. Their voices are constantly raised in angry strife. Their leader's minds are contaminated with the filth of their environment, and the most terrible of all, the faces of the little children reflect only hopelessness and apathy.

Among these widely differing homes stands one—a veritable mansion—new and gleaming white. The foundation, strong and substantial, bespeaks the thoroughness of the master workman who laid it. The architecture, exquisitely intricate, perfect in every detail, tells graphically of the many hours of heart-rendering toil the builder so gladly gave for its completion. The most striking and beautiful characteristic of the mansion is the whiteness, the dazzling whiteness. The sun shines most kindly and the moon casts its soft radiance most tenderly

My Poor Feet

No use to punish your faithful feet this hot weather with unbroken shoes when we can rebuild those old easy ones. Do the right thing by your feet. We'll help you.

Shanks Is At Reavis'

on this home—the favorite of the gods. Workmen, who are building new homes, come often to view this home—the perfect model. Other workmen, discouraged from surveying the gloomy ruins of their own endeavors, return from viewing this glorious achievement inspired and determined to construct their new homes similar to this one.

But to perpetuate the whiteness of the mansion, to retain that high esteem with which the inhabitants of the city regard this home, the leader must be a man of high ideals and with a deep sense of honor, keeping the memory of the lives and ideals of the wonderful builders of this home constantly before him.

Such a man is he who now is the leader of the home—quiet and capable, arousing no antipathy in the hearts of his people, but kindly and firmly administering to their needs. A man whose avowed purpose is to provide the conditions under which people can make a living and peacefully work out their own difficulties.

To what avail was this gorgeous mansion constructed, this leader so endowed placed at its head, unless the individual, living in its inspiring influence, also grows good and beautiful?

"In the human plan, Nothing is worth the making if it does not make the man; Why build these cities glorious. If man unbuilt goes? In vain we build the world, Unless the builder also grows?" This poem must have been sung by those glorious workmen of old, who so joyously sacrificed their lives that this idea might be perpetuated in the hearts of the succeeding generation.

How does this home help its people to grow? First it establishes and enforces law. The stabilizing force in any home is the restraining influence of a generally accepted code of manners.

Freedom is the greatest boon of all. Free speech, free religion, free press, for which men in all ages have fought so earnestly and unrelentingly, are the inalienable rights of every dweller in the White Mansion.

An encompassing and comprehensive education is offered to those who live in this home. They do not have to earn this gift, they have merely to accept it. Vast libraries are established so that they, who so desire, may enlighten and educate themselves. Laboratories and scientific apparatus are placed at the disposal of those who are scientifically inclined. One who dwells within the precincts of the White Mansion has an opportunity to grow and grow and grow.

One of the most precious privileges that the White Mansion accords its people is the privilege of selecting their leaders. They have a share in making the laws of the home and thus they become more interested in the beautifying of the home, through actual participation.

The White Mansion protects its people not only when they are under its immediate roof, but also when they are wandering along the streets of the city or lodging in one of the neighboring homes. The eagle is emblematic of the protection which the Mansion affords its people. There it stands over the door of the home—its wings spread protectively over its angels, ready to claw and batter the daring intruder who would harm the weakest of its angels.

The inhabitants of this blessed dwelling, realizing their good fortune, are willing to share with those more unfortunate than they. They gladly admit those who have fled the oppression and restriction of their own homes. They encourage these strangers to take advantage of the opportunities offered in their glorious home, strangers who perhaps have been denied opportunity and chance of advancement at their own homes. In return for these benefits the strangers are expected to vow allegiance and honor to their adopted home.

Recently a stranger, disillusioned and calloused by the sordidness of his own home, entered the gates of the White Mansion. Impassively he accepted the shelter and food the house afforded. Indifferently he basked in the protecting influence of the law, in his heart burned a fierce, undying love for his own home, the home in which he had suffered so much. Surely when he loved such a home as his, he would doubly cherish and appreciate the new home from which he had received so much and returned nothing.

Common courtesy should have compelled the man to abide by the rules of his new home, to treat his benefactors with kindness and to respect their traditions and deals. But the perversity and ingratitude of the man showed forth appallingly when he broke one of the solemn rules of the home. He apparently ignored the consequences which he had been given abundant proof would inevitably follow such an action.

The inhabitants looked upon this despicable deed with contempt, but he was impervious to their scorn. He was tried and proved guilty of this terrible offense. When his punishment was announced to him he protested vehemently.

"Since I am not a member of this home whose rule I broke, I should not be punished."

The absurdity of the man's plea inflamed the inhabitants and they replied bitterly.

"You came of your own free will, accepted the privileges of this home and then did this unspeakable thing. The punishment was not harsh enough. You shall be banished from this home, then perhaps you will appreciate that which you have forfeited."

Then despite his wild entreaties, the man was shut up in a small, dark room, far from his friends and beautiful surroundings. There he miserably meditates on that which he has forfeited forever.

The judge ceased his narrative and leaning back in his chair became immersed in thought. The courtroom was almost dark—the guards standing at each door looked questioningly at each other, then one pushed a button flooding the room with light. The prisoner started involuntarily. His dark eyes glowed comprehendingly, for the judge had pressed the button which had flooded the dark recess of his mind with light, appreciation for this new home—his home.

Miss Halcyon Hooker was called to her home in Maryville last week-end on account of the serious illness of her grandfather, C. D. Hooker. Miss Hooker was formerly a student at the college and is now teaching music and studying in the Conservatory of Lincoln University.

Dean Edith A. Barnard and Mrs. George Colbert entertained twenty guests with a one-o'clock luncheon Friday, May 15, at the home of the latter. Bridge was played through the afternoon. Mrs. Hastings, Miss Stowell, and Mrs. M. E. Ford, were among the guests.

Dr. Arthur Cramp, a former student at the Maryville Seminary, called at the college last week on his way home to Chicago. Dr. Cramp was returning from Lincoln, Nebraska, where he had been called to deliver an address.

Arthur Elmore will go to High Point, North Carolina, as instrumental supervisor next year.

Eugene Clark, of Rea, a former student of the College high school, was in Maryville last week-end visiting friends.

Mr. Miller Commends Work in High Schools

Mr. Miller speaks very highly of the work being done at the schools where he has recently delivered commencement addresses.

At Civil Bend, Mr. Miller was introduced by Sam Evans whose home is at that place. Sam's brother, Clifford, the only boy in a class of thirteen graduates, was valedictorian. He was given a scholarship in Chillicothe Business College, but he with several other members of the class will be in school at Maryville this summer. Lewis Werth, superintendent, will be back to finish his work at the college next year. Mary Croy has been employed as superintendent for next year. Her sister, Faye, will be assistant superintendent.

There were twelve graduates at Irish Grove. Ira Fantz, who took the position as superintendent when Robert Birbeck came back to college, is still ill and Marie Portis is taking his place. Hallie Rhoades will have fifth and sixth grades at Fairfax next year.

At Cainsville, Mr. Miller spoke to twenty-five graduates. Harley Power, a graduate of S. T. C., and of William Jewell, is the superintendent. His daughter, Pearl Tucker, who teaches in the third and fourth grades will be in school at the College this summer. They have a fine new school building at Cainsville. Mr. Power has been re-elected but he has made no definite plans as yet.

Mr. Miller commented particularly upon the building at Blythesdale, which has been remodeled. The new scenery in the auditorium, which was tastefully decorated, gave a very pleasing atmosphere. Mr. O. R. Hunt, who is now superintendent, will act in the same capacity next year at Blythesdale. There were large audiences at each address and splendid attention was shown.

While waiting at the station at Bethany, Mr. Miller saw Garland White, editor of the Bethany Clipper and former Maryville man. He also visited with Mrs. M. E. Pangburn, formerly Myrtle McPherson of the college, who is now superintendent at Martinsville.

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

The basketry department has been doing some good work in weaving both the designs and under stitch.

For the over and under stitch on which scarfs and rugs are woven of wool the two harness looms are used. The four harness looms are used for designing.

Part of the department have been rather busy in preparing and making horses, milking stools, and a throne, all of which are to be used in the May day program.

Library tables, to take care of the summer rush, will be finished by the last of this quarter.

Mr. Glenn received a letter last week from Mr. Partch, in regard to the department's progress. Mr. Partch is in Harvard working on his Doctor's Degree.

PHILOS HAVE PARTY

The Philo Literary Society gave a party on Wednesday, May 13, at 7:30 p. m. The party was in the form of a "kid party." All members were dressed as "Kids" and kid games were played such as "Ring-around-the-Rosey," "Drop the Handkerchief," and relay games.

Initiation of new members was a part of the evening's program.

Many Courses Offered in Art

Students desiring to take Fine Arts during the summer will have the opportunity of taking practically any course in that line. Courses of freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior ranking will be offered.

Miss DeLance announced that there has been several calls for Blackboard Drawing and that the course will be given. It teaches the use of the blackboard as a means of illustrating elementary and high school projects, including sketching in chalk, map drawing and illustrated talks.

In addition to introduction to Art for the Elementary School—11, Fine and Applied Arts for the Kindergarten and Primary Grades—51, Fine and Applied Arts for the Upper Grades and Junior High School—61, courses will be offered in Art Structure—71 and Freehand Drawing and Painting—72. Art Structure is planned for those specializing in Fine Arts, Home Economics and Industrial Arts. Freehand Drawing and Painting is a prerequisite for advanced courses in the department for those specializing in Fine Arts. It consists of representation in outline, principles of perspective drawing and painting from still life, buildings, flowers, and trees. The advanced course will also be given.

Design in the Art Industries—81, Costume Design—121, and Home Planning and Decorating—131, are being offered to meet the requirements of students intending to teach Fine Arts, or Home Economics under the Smith-Hughes Act. Home Planning and Decorating consists of planning of the house and grounds, the relation of the individual home to a civic zoning system, the artistic basis for the selection and placement of interior furnishings, the historic background of American furniture and domestic architecture, estimates for specific problems, and staging of plays and pageants. All problems are related to the high school course of study in fine arts.

College Notes

How to get the high school and college student to imbibe such matters as the declared fact that Columbus discovered America in 1492 will be thoroughly thrashed out by teachers and students of history at the University of Iowa next summer when the weekly round tables of summer session history students consider the problems of teaching history in high school and colleges.

A law clinic, patterned somewhat after the medical clinic, has been instituted in the college of law at the University of Iowa for the benefit of practicing attorneys and law students. The scheme will be put into effect during the summer session. There will be two terms, the first lasting from June 18 to July 22 and the second from July 23 to August 26.

In this clinic laws will undergo "treatment" just as patients undergo treatment in a medical clinic. Lawyers who wish an insight into practical law problems, can take it out on the dog here before attempting to handle cases for their clients, with, of course, vast benefit for the clients.

Problems of advanced practice, examination of abstracts of title, income and inheritance taxation, office practice, advanced Iowa practice, public utilities, insurance, partnership, and municipal corporations will be discussed in as many different classes. The college's law library of 38,000 volumes will be at the service of the students.

A very important action was taken by the normal school presidents of North Dakota in a meeting held at Bismarck April 2-3.

The purpose of the meeting was to recommend to the Board of Administration that after January 1, 1926, the elementary diploma be abandoned and that no normal school diploma, for less than the completion of the standard curriculum—96 quarter hours be granted.

If this recommendation is passed as it undoubtedly will be it will make the State Teachers College at Valley City, North Dakota a standard teacher training institution.

As a result of a late endowment campaign Simmons College of Abilene, Texas, will become Simmons University.

According to the figures recently compiled, Amherst has a larger percentage of its graduates in "Who's Who in America" than any other college. There are 869 Amherst men out of ten thousand listed.

Southwest State Teachers College at Springfield will have a coaching school beginning June 2. They will have five nationally known experts in Coaching and Physical Education. Robert Zupke, director of athletics and football coach at the University of Illinois; T. B. Jones, track coach at the University of Wisconsin; Dr. F. C. Allen, director of physical education and basketball coach at the University of Kansas; John Bradford of the American Playground Association of New York City; and Miss Gertrude M. Baker director of Physical Education for Women at the University of Minnesota will be there.

Miss Frances Tobey, a professor in the English department of the Colorado State Teachers College, at Greeley, who studied at Oxford last year, says that life there is very charming and tells of some of the quaint customs in the English university.

Every student at Oxford, she says, must be inside the walls of the college at 9 o'clock at night, when the historic old bell tolls its hundred and one traditional strokes. If he is late, he must pay a fine, and if he is very late, he will probably not be permitted to leave the college for perhaps a week.

The institution has a great wealth of tradition that gives it an interesting atmosphere. Two protocols regulate the discipline of the place. They are privileged to fine a student if he appears at the college without cap and gown. They may stop a man walking along the street with a lady and demand an introduction.

Chaperones are required upon all occasions when a man arranges an entertainment for a girl, unless the party includes several. A girl is not permitted to appear in a boat on the river with a man even in the daytime without a chaperone.

The regular term lasts for eight weeks and vacations are six weeks long. Most of the studying is done during the vacations as political and social life occupies so much time in the regular term.

Women were admitted to the university under the same conditions and with the same advantages as men in 1920. Miss Tobey was one of the first women to enter Oxford after the doors were opened to women.

Miss Tobey was an instructor in the English department in the Colorado State College when Miss Hopkins was there as a student.

Considerable work is being done on the campus at Warrensburg. New side walks and a parking ground for cars are being made. Four new tennis courts are under construction and many new shrubs and trees have been planted.

A course to be given in the University of Kentucky this semester is called "Conversation." The object of the course is to train students along conversational lines.

Charles Persinger, Jimmie Jones, and Joe Prather attended the State Track Meet held at Kirksville, Saturday, May 16.

Mr. Wallin went to Grandview last Friday to deliver the class address to the graduates of that district.

Education Council Make Three-Year Study

Why Americans Should Study Foreign Language to Be of Subject Work.

A three-year investigation to determine the reasons why Americans should study foreign languages has been launched under the auspices of the American Council on Education, under the supervision and control of twenty foreign language teachers in colleges and secondary schools located throughout the country.

The Chairman of the Study, Professor Robert Herndon Fife, of Columbia University, makes the following statement:

"Based on a preliminary canvass, the following are some of the educational benefits claimed for foreign language study:

The ability to read the foreign language with ease and enjoyment.

The ability to communicate in speech and in writing with foreigners.

Increased ability to read, write and speak English.

A better realization of the importance of correct speech habits.

Increased knowledge of the history and institutions of the foreign country, and a better understanding of their contribution to modern civilization.

Increased ability to understand ideals and standards of foreign people and Americans of foreign birth.

Development of literary and artistic appreciation.

Development of a better realization of the relations of the individual to society.

All of these and some others are to be tested, to determine whether American students are now obtaining these results. If not, it is proposed to discover ways in which they can be attained."

The much discussed subject of school curriculum is to be attacked on the side of foreign languages by a committee working under the American Council on Education. The committee is supported by an appropriation from the Carnegie Corporation of New York, which is also financing a similar study in Canada. The committee in charge of the investigation proposes not only to gather full statistics regarding the study of French, German, Italian and Spanish in the schools of the country, but will also stage a large number of tests and experiments, to determine what can be done to improve the study of these languages in America. For this purpose it will call on experts in education and educational psychology to try out old and new methods in schools and universities. It will try to find out how many graduates of school and college are now able to read French or German, and whether those who read foreign books or newspapers have learned the language at school or at home. Experts in the University of Chicago will measure with delicate instruments the movements of the eyes in reading foreign texts. An effort will be made to discover what proportion of graduates of schools and colleges are now making useful employment of foreign languages in conversation or correspondence, and what the need is for such capacities by the graduates of American schools and colleges.

The Investigation Committee will also seek to learn how far the average American needs French or Italian in order to understand foreign phrases in our books and newspapers, and how far the study of the language helps towards a correct use of English. Tests will also be made in an endeavor to find out what are the chief difficulties which American students encounter in learning foreign languages.

All of these results the committee will incorporate in a report, which ought to be of direct use in improving the teaching of foreign languages in this country, and also in determining how far they can be studied with profit.

For a successful conclusion the cooperation of every teacher of the modern foreign languages in school and college will be of significance. In addition, the sympathetic assistance of school principals, of local and state superintendents, and of college administrators is an urgent necessity for the progress of the study. Suggestions and criticisms of the program and methods of the study are earnestly invited.—The Antelope.

HEADLIGHT-DELICATESSEN

The marriage of Rosebud Delicatsen and Archibald Hercules Headlight took place at Residence Hall at 7 o'clock, Tuesday evening. The aisle from the stairs to the altar was roped off with varicolored ribbons. Before the bride procession appeared, Wavie McKee as minister and master of ceremonies, followed by Elizabeth Mills and Loraine Maxey, escorted Martha Haas, pianist, to her station where through the combined efforts of all four a duet was rendered. Immediately after the last note of the song Miss Haas began to play "Stumbling" with great expression and sympathy. The groom appeared at the left of the altar accompanied by the best man. The bride descended the stairs preceded by two flower girls and followed by the train bearers. The mother of the bride followed on the arm of an usher, and for some unexplainable reason seemed exceedingly sorrowful.

The wedding ceremony commenced, but was interrupted at the crucial moment by the rushing entrance of a young and handsome man who objected to the marriage, alleging the sum total spent on this one Rosebud for lollypops to be three dollars and ninety-eight cents. The father hastily paid this unlooked for price of his daughter's happiness and the ceremony proceeded. The ring was dropped only twice and the happy couple were married in record time.

The groom was dressed in a dark suit. The bride wore an ensemble made of old point lace.

The groom was Thelma McReynolds; the bride—Jessie Johns; flower girls—Julia Cadwell and Ruby Jennings; trainbearers—Tressa House and Margaret Elliot; ringbearer—Lorene Buckner; best man—Merle Hawkins; mother of the bride—Eleanor Buren; father of the bride—Thelma Hodgins; and the broken-hearted suitor Juanda Hawkins.

Townsend Godsey Gets Mention As Writer

Townsend Godsey, formerly a student at S. T. C., has received recognition as a coming writer of Missouri. Sunday's Kansas City Journal-Post had the following article concerning Townsend:

"William Townsend Godsey, a member of the editorial staff of the St. Joseph News-Press, is a young Missouri writer who is fast making a name for himself. He has sold to Life, Radio and Brief Stories Magazines and is not yet 21 years old."

Miss Smith and Miss Paxton entertained at the home of Mrs. D. R. Baker, 604 West Third St., May 21, 7:30 p. m. a party of their friends at six tables at bridge. Pink roses were used as decorations, and a pink and white color scheme was carried out in the refreshments.

Y. M. C. A.

At the meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday, May 12, the scripture was taken from the first eight verses of Second Timothy. Mable Raines sang "God is Love". She was accompanied by Ruth Houchens. The last number on the program was the most interesting of the hour. Each of four girls read and explained her favorite chapter in the Bible. Those taking part were Alyce Allen, Elizabeth Mills, Loraine Maxey, and Nellie Hall.

Guild Gives Play

Sunday evening the Jean MacKinnzie Chapter of the Westminster Guild gave the play, "A Stitch in Time", at the Presbyterian Church.

The leading characters in the play were "Polly", which was taken by Irene Goff; "Bobolink" portrayed by Katherine Keplar, and "Patches", the thieving Chinese servant and interpreter, played by Lucy Allen.

All the parts were played with clever interpretation. Others in the cast of Chinese men and women were: Pauline Frazier, Gertrude Sawyer, Christine Goff, Ruth Lawrence, Halie Folly, Clare Davis, Dorothy Murray, Clela McCoy, and Lorena Gault. The play deals with the missionary service "Polly" and "Bobolink" render to the Chinese while there on their honeymoon.

The play was ably directed by Miriam Gray who received her A. B. degree from this institution this spring, having specialized in Dramatics and Art.

Miss Irene Teagarden, of the college faculty, is the patroness of the Jean MacKinnzie Chapter. The chapter was organized last October and has made much progress under the guidance of Miss Teagarden.

ferred, Mr. Rogers said that penmanship had fallen to such a low status in Missouri that the Teachers Colleges in the state were asked to offer classes in this subject and that there seemed to be such a demand for it in the summer that it was necessary to have at least six classes. To illustrate the need for penmanship he said that in one of his classes this year practically everyone stated that they had not had penmanship in the public schools and that some students admitted that there were many of the letters, especially capitals, that they did not know how to make.

Ruby Goodwin has accepted a position as teacher of English and Dramatics in junior high at Glenwood, Iowa.

Mrs. Helwig, Miss Katherine Helwig's mother, has been very ill at her home on West Fourth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Lon Wilson, former students of S. T. C., were at the college Monday. They will both attend summer school.

Private lessons in dramatics will be given by Miss McClanahan this summer.

Fredda Bennett, former S. T. C. student, has gone to Rochester, Minnesota, where she will take treatment.

Lady Marden: "I must say I think you are both talking a little wildly."

Good Day!

Where did I get my hat?
So you've noticed it already?
Rather all-right, I think myself.
I'm glad you like it, too. A man always wants to have his own choice endorsed by others, you know.
Indeed, I don't mind telling where I got it—all the rest are just as "right at"
